Biography

Dominic's practice focuses on civil litigation in state and federal courts. He has experience in all stages of litigation, including strategy, case management, depositions, motion practice, mediation, arbitration, trial, post-judgment enforcement proceedings, and appeals. Dominic has represented defendants and plaintiffs in high-profile disputes, including business litigation, employment matters, product liability, healthcare litigation, and trust and estates litigation.

Dominic earned his J.D. from USC Gould School of Law. During law school, Dominic served on the Southern California Review of Law and Social Justice law journal staff and was also a Mediation Clinic member. Dominic earned his undergraduate degree, cum laude, from the University of California, Los Angeles. While there, he studied for a semester in Rome, Italy.

Before joining Miller Barondess, Dominic practiced in the Los Angeles office of a large international law firm in its Trial and Global Disputes practice group. Dominic also practiced as a probate litigator at a trust and estates boutique in Los Angeles.
